This week, the House and Senate will be busy with committee hearings leading up to the March 27 deadline for bills to be voted out of committee. With just two weeks to go, the activity level will increase significantly as sponsors try to pass as many bills as possible out of committee.

Each year, hundreds of “shell” bills are filed. Sometimes called “vehicle” or “technical” bills, these bills have no content. Shell bills wait for content to be added by amendment. Most of the bills are filed by the legislative leaders and are “just in case” they might be needed during the process. These leader vehicles are heavily used during the final days of the legislative session. Other shell bills are filed by members in the hope that language can be developed during the session. The shell bills create a significant challenge because, until the amendment is filed, there is no way to know what the bill may try to do. Therefore, we must pay close attention to all amendments filed during this time period.

To make reading this report easier, information highlighted in yellow indicates an action taken on the bill since last week. Please contact us with any questions or if you would like additional information.
